

Canada Gets Battle Ready For Next Deployment

These pictures show some of the activities taking place at Canadian Forces Base Wainwright as a general exercise called Maple Resolve is taking place. The south part of the exercise field is a neighbour to the northern part of the M.D. of Provost. ©PROVOST NEWS PHOTOS.

Lt. Col. Greg Ives surveys the field operation.

A jet makes a low level—but high speed appearance.

Capt. Ryan Telfor on top of LAV (centre) called in the close air support on Oct. 14.

Troops take pictures (above and two photos down at right). Right the M777 is covered up.

Warrant Officer Chesley Reid (left) of 2 Royal Canadian Horse Artillery at the artillery range while right is Captain Mike Miller of 2 Canadian Mechanized Brigade Group Headquarters and Signals Squadron.

Left: a medical worker (at right) gets to fire the large M777 gun.

Troops climb a hill while out in the field being briefed by senior instructors.

A soldier lifts another 98 pound shell to be fired.

Right others re-load the gun after it fires (above).

Preparing another shell (left) for the high-impact M777 that troops are training on.

The jet is called back for another low-level pass.

A vast portion of the countryside is hidden with smoke.